We are Buro Four | Data

We apply our Project Management skills, knowledge and experience to respond to the unique demands of data centre and mission critical projects.

Buro Four | Data is a dedicated data centre division of Buro Four which allows us to commit a specialist team to our data centre clients whilst being able to draw on the resource of our wider business of over 65 project managers across the UK.

Buro Four was established in 1985 and remains one of the leading independent project management practices. As a Buro Four company, we share the same vision and values: to be the best project management consultancy, unrivalled for flair, expertise and results.

We deliver with certainty

Our service to our data centre clients is anchored by four core principles:

Focus

Project Management is our specialism. This is the focus of our skill set and expertise and we invest everything in doing it well.

Intelligence

We understand our data centre clients' key drivers and challenges and apply intelligence and innovation to find new solutions.

People

Our team thrives on the complexity and pace of data centre projects. We will dedicate a highly skilled and experienced team to your projects.

Certainty

We define, plan, integrate and manage all aspects of the project to help our clients achieve certainty of outcome.

Four strengths that set us apart

One Our People

Personal, dedicated expertise

Our experienced team of project managers has been leading mission critical new build, expansion and upgrade projects for over twenty years.

Our team will draw on resources and expertise across the business, ensuring best practice and innovation is shared and applied to your project.

Three Our Service

Specialist Project Management

Our core service is Project Management; focused on our clients' needs. We understand the sector-specific drivers and issues arising from managing and maintaining the development pipeline to meet demand. Buro Four | Data has the skills and tools to address the challenges posed by the pace of growth, particularly:

- Speed to Market
- Certainty of outcome
- Supply chain management
- Standardisation
- Scalability and phasing
- The skills gap
- Design management
- Programme management
- Stakeholder management
- Handover
- Delivery on 'live' sites
- Sustainability
- Total cost of ownership

Four Our Results

How we get the best results

We add real value to data centre clients' projects by:

Communication

Defining channels of communication to promote collaboration. Engaging stakeholders.

Organisation

Preparing a Plan of Works to define organisational structures, roles and responsibilities, reporting and authorisation.

Controls

Establishing robust governance and decision-making structures from the outset.

Coordination

Bringing together experienced teams to develop suitable solutions

Process

Using our in-house Toolkit to provide a structured review and approval process at each stage of project, that is tracked and documented. Managing change whilst maintaining a flexible culture and mindset. Assuring consistency in project delivery.

Scheduling

Developing and agreeing an end-to-end project programme that is realistic and recognises the time needed for testing and commissioning, handover and user training.

Procurement

Developing and implementing a procurement strategy and procurement schedule that uses market intelligence to balance objectives and risks against supply chain pressures and skills gaps.

Reporting

Accurate, regular, open, and honest reporting.
